Apply your horticultural interest or training at our scenic western Montana fruit farm

We have a position for a horticulture student, alumnus, or other interested person at our small, diversified, direct-to-market fruit farm in western Montana. The job involves assistance with most aspects of tree fruit production, including laborious work such as hand thinning fruit, maintaining irrigation lines, weed control, etc. Assistance with fruit harvest, packing, and delivery to market would follow.

In short, we are looking for someone interested in productive hands-on work, but we would assist in making it a good learning experience as well. We would prefer someone available year-round but a seasonal position is possible. We may be able to assist with housing; compensation is negotiable.
