Title: Plant Collections Specialist – Seasonal

Location: Chicago Botanic Garden, 1000 Lake Cook Rd., Glencoe, IL 60022

Description: The collections specialist will help the Garden's curators of herbaceous perennial and woody plants in collecting data on the Garden's plant collections. This person will perform literature research, review current collection holdings, determine the availability and nativity of taxa, enter data and transfer information, develop lists of new acquisitions and sources for specialized collections, evaluate plants from foreign expeditions for quantity, health, and provenance-based adaptability, and produce reports. We are looking for someone who knows plants, is detail-oriented, accurate, and passionate about plants and their cultivars; comfortable with computers; and preferably has a bachelor's degree in horticulture or botany. This is a twelve week position, May – August.
