Wild Goose Gardens is looking for an intern to work this season in Osceola, MO where they grow over 75 varieties of cut flowers using plasti-culture techniques in the field and hoop houses for season extension. Using these techniques they harvest 10 months of the year and grow year round with the goal of producing the best quality product in a way that is both sustainable and profitable.

They are hoping to find an intern who can participate in all aspects of the farm operation and help complete several special projects. Special projects this year include implementing an integrated pest management system in the hoop houses and fields, utilizing caterpillar tunnels in the field for early and late season growing, and adding pasture raised pigs to the mix.

Farming experience is not the most important thing they’re look for. Instead they want to find people, who are a willing to work hard, learn what is being taught and enjoy what they’re doing. Most people quickly realize they aren't happy doing the physical work of farming if they aren’t motivated and excited by the way of life that farming really is.

The goal at Wild Goose Gardens is to provide an intern with the opportunity to learn as much as possible about all aspects of farming from greenhouse work, planting and weeding, planning and scheduling crops, pest management, farm equipment and anything else that comes up. While simultaneously working, working, working (in all weather) and enjoying the work while we do it. Please look over the specifics below and let them know if you are interested in pursuing an internship position at Wild Goose Gardens.

So here are some specifics, the season is early April thru mid to late October. Hours vary depending on the weather and time of year; there are always days where we work longer or cut off early. This is not likely to be like any other job you've had. Stipend & Housing: $400/month and housing is provided on the farm.

If after all this you are interested in applying for an internship position, please email Ethan at Wildgoosegardens@gmail.com and let him know why and when you are available. Applications need the be received by March 30th.
